UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Important Internal Revenue Decision-Con-fication of Gold Coin-The Great Western Railroad Compuny and Coal Carriage.
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18, 1872.

The following opinions were delivered in the Supreme Court to-day:—

No. 104. United States vs. Henderson—Error to the Direuit Court for the Eastern district of Missouri .-This was an information to enforce forfeiture against 100 barrels of spirits for an alleged violation of the sternal revenue laws. The spirits were removed om the distillery to a bonded warenouse of the Internal revenue laws. The spirits were removed from the distillery to a bonded warehouse of the government without the tax being paid. While in the warehouse lienderson purchased them, first paying the tax required by law. These facts were shoulated and also that Henderson was an innocent purchaser. On these facts the court-below would not inter an intent to defraud the government, because the spirits were removed to a United States bonded warehouse, the removal being a legal act, and it was said that if there was originally an intent to derrand the United States the mere intent in the mind of the distiller, which was never executed, was no ground of ionfeiture. The court reverses that judgment, holding in substance that it is not impossible that one step in an attempt to defraud the government in such a case might be the removal of the spirits to a bonded warehouse of the United States, and that to hold otherwise would afford opportunity for endess transis upon the revenue by collusion, &c., between the revenue officers and the parties. Mr. Justice Field dissented in an opinion sustaining the judgment below, and declaring it unprecedented in the history of judicial decisions in this country that the property of a citizen, honestly acquired without suspicion of wrong on the part of his vendors, is forietted and taken from him because such vendor, at some period wine owning the property, conceived he intent to defraud the government of the tax increon, authoring such hieten was never developed in action and for the execution of which no step was ever taxen.

No. 113. Gay vs. United States-Appeal from the Circuit Court for the District of Louisiana .- In this case the Court affirm the decree below condemning certain gold com shipped by the appellant, a Louis tana planter, during the war, as alleged, for points within the rebei lines, the view being taken that the government makes a case for confiscation. Mr. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

No. 96. The Great Western Insurance Company vs. Thwing-Error to the Circuit Court for Massacau-Setts.—In this case the insurance company insured the ship Albambra for the defendant on a voyage from Liverpool to San Francisco, the policy containing a clause against loading with more than her registered tomage of certain commodities named, among which was coal. The ship meeting with accident the loss was paid. But, afterward, the company learned that she had taken in more than her registered tomage, and sued to recover the insurance paid. The answer averred that certain coal was received as dunnage for the rest of the cargo, and the Court instructed the jury, if this was the fact, the coal was not a part of the loading and not within the contract. The verdict and judgment were accordingly, and the same questions were presented here. The Court reverse the judgment below, nothing that the rule as to dunnage will not be extended to merenandise received and paid for as freight, although used as dunnage. The cause is remanded, with instructions to proceed in accordance with the opinion. Mr. Justice Brasley delivered the opinion. was set down for yesterday morning in the Court of Common Pieas, Part 2, before Judge Van Brunt, and accordingly the court room was crowded, as many interesting developments were anticipated.

When the case was called ex-Judge Beebe, on the part of the detendants, asked that it be adjourned for a week, upon the ground of the illness of one of the parties in the action, and who was an important witness, now prostrated by sickness. Counsel read a certificate from Dr. O'Donnell, setting forth that the witness in question would be unable to leave her home for a week.

Colonel Dawson, on behalf of the plaintiff, objected to an adjournment and contended that the plaintiff would be very much embarrassed by any postponement. He said that an order had been issued setting the case down peremptorily for today, and he would not, therefore, consent to any adjournment.

Mr. Dawson again objected, submitting that no affidavit was produced setting forth the facts al-

MARINE COURT -- PART I.

Action for Damages-Falling Through a Trap

Before Judge Gross. Travis vs. Hammond .-- The son of the plaintiff, a lad of 16, being engaged with the defendant last summer at his place of business in Chambers street, went up to the fifth story of the building, as he states, by direction of one of the defendant's clerks, and in closing the trap door, after the goods were lowered, one of the hinges gave way and he was precinitated to the ground floor, a distance of sixty-five teet, breaking both arms, his upper and lower jaws and his nose. The present sait is brought to recover the expense incurred for nurses, medicines, &c., an action having been commenced in the Common Pleas claiming $10,000 for injuries to the boy.

The defendant's evidence was to the effect that the boy had no directions from any one to assist about the hatchways, and that the accident was caused by his simming the trapdoor. It also appeared that the defendant had paid the doctors bills, purchased closhes for the boy and paid his wages during his entire illness, disbursing about $300.

Under the charge of the Court that the jury must went up to the fifth story of the building, as he

Under the charge of the Court that the jury must be satisfied that the defendant or his servants were guilty of negligence, and that the plaintiff was entirely free from it before he could recover, a verdict was rendered in favor of defendant. For plaintiff, P. Cook; for defendant, A. C. Farnnam.

MARINE COURT-PART 2.

Death of Ex-Judge Whiting.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

SUPREME COURT-CIRCUIT.

The Westfield Disaster-The Staten Island Ferry Company Complaining of the Great Expense They Are Subjected To-Another Postponement. Before Judge Pratt.

Yesterday morning ex-Judge Beach, of counsel for the Staten Island Rahroad Company, applied to Judge Pratt for a postponement of the Westfield cases. He alluded to the great expense the company had been put to, and thought that it was a great hardship for the company to be compelled to proceed with these suits.

Mr. Greenfield, counsel for Mrs. Chenevière (it will Mr. Greenheid, counsel for Mrs. Cheneviere (it will be remembered that the jury in one action brought by her last week disagreed), desired the cases he had enarge of to be tried as soon as possible.

Judge Beach spoke of the mortgage on the property of the company, and said that it was an old mortgage of some years' standing; and from the losses sustained by the company from the accident, they found themselves uttenly without means to pay the interest which fell due in December last, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months to pay it in, and they have six months and the markets in a position to pay the interest of the mortgage, but that he was not aware that any device had been arrived at to pay these channs, as the company were not able to borrow the money. He was not aware that the company were goth had been arrived at the property sacrificed. He was learned that the pressure of these cases and the discredit to which the company is reduced by them will make it necessary for them to dispose of some of their property. He said it was contrary to the practice in this course to press any trial and try it over and over again in one session for the mere sake of getting a verdict.

Judge Pratt Inderstood that they were going to take one case as a test for all the others in which Mr. Greenheld was counsel. He would not press a trial that morning.

Judge beach said he did not desire to embarrass Mr. Greenheld mageling a verdict if he could, had the judge Beach said he did not desire to embarrass Mr. Greenheld mageling a verdict if he could, had the judge Beach assured him that it was utterly be remembered that the jury in one action brought Judge Beach and he did not desire to embarrass hir. Greenfield in getting a verdict if he could, but he fludge Beach) assored him that it was afterly impossible for time to proceed at present. It was utterly impossible from the expenses of this company, which they had been put to at the time of time explosion, and the executions put upon their boats, and they have not been able to produce but for the settlement of the results.

This was the third term these cases had been entered for this. Ma. Greenfield said. The first was in November and next in January, and the other for this term. Respecting the trial of last week Mr. Greenfield stated that the Judge well knew that they onget to have had a verdict, and it was rather a mistaken jury than a kinstrial, and se cound present certain arguments that would can for a disposition of the fraits at once. Mr. Greenfield added that he may hear the company were about to aske another mortgage of $250,000; but for what purpose he knew 15t.

Judge Beach—That is true, and it is done under knew not.

Judge Beach—That is true, and it is done under my instructions, for the purpose of raising money to meet the expenses of the company. There are two mortgages already on our boats, and our credit is such that we cannot issue bonds except at a great loss. If the company were allowed to go on with their business they would be able to find the money to meet all expenses.

After some further talk ine trial of another of the cases was set down for the 27th inst., Judge Pratt stating that the others should abide the event of this trial unless Mr. Greenfield brought evidence that the company were trying to evade the judgment by disposing of their property, and then he would submit that if the interest of $7,000 on this mortgage of $200,000 was not paid before the 27th for the rest of the cases on the calendar.

Mr. Greenfield sard the default to f paying the interest in December last was for the purpose of allowing the property to be sold that it might be bought in by the present stockholders, who profess to be poor, and yet they have positively affirmed that the company was worth $80,000. The six months allowed them for the paying of the interest expires on the list of June, when they will be able to sell out and become stockholders for a new company, and so by getting rid of the old company wipe out all inabilities against it. He therefore offered to Mr. Beach that if they would place a sufficient number of collaterals with him for the amount, he would advance the $7,000 for the interest.

Mr. Beach acclined to accept this,

Mr. Beach acclined to accept this,

IMPORTANT INSURANCE TRIAL The Question of Insuring Foreign Bound Vessels and the Liabilities of Insurance Compa-

An important decision affecting the rights of insurance companies has just been rendered in the Supreme Judicial Court. The case was that of Peter Atherton vs. The Phœnix Insurance Company, Peter Atherton vs. The Phœnix Insurance Company, and was an action of contract. Mr. Atherton was owner of the snip Northerland, which was insured for $15,000 in the decendant's organization. The insurance was to continue at and from Cardif to Aden, and at and inence, with liberty of port of aden, and discharge in Europe. After leaving Aden the vessel was taken to Point de Galle and remained some time, after which she was wrecked. The defendants claim that this stop at Point de Galle was a deviation from the course of a voyage to Europe; they also alleged that Atherton's title to the ownership of the vessel was not a perfect one and that the policy of insurance was invalidated by conveyance of the property to other parties without the consent of the insurers. Before the testimony had all been put in at the trial the case was taken from the jury and carried to the full Bench of the Supreme Court on several law points, and that Court has now decided that the plaintiff cannot maintain his action and has ordered judgment for defendants.

DARING ESCAPE OF CONVICTS.

How They Worked Tacir Way to Freedom

With a Hot Poker. On Friday night three convicts escaped from Blackwell's Island by means which would have Blackwell's Island by means which would have done credit to the criminal genins of Dick Turpin, Claude Duval or Jack Sheppard. They were sent to serve various terms, and their good conduct commended them to the prison authorities, who extended to them all the lenity which the rules and discipline would admit. At length they were removed to the hospital, where they became very useful, winning the good will and layor of those in charge, who allowed them to roam about at pleasure. On Thursday last, now-ever, the trio agreed upon a darling plan of escape, which was to be put into execution on the following night. At the appointed time they met in the room over the chapel, and there set about the work. One of the convicts took a red-hot poker from the fire and bured a circular hole in the floor, removing the pieces till an apperture was made large enough to admit of them reaching the enapel below. They descended at once, and when in the canpel they fivised a number of bed quills into ropes, and prepared to make a descent through one of the windows. One of the patients in the hospital died the night before and awaited burial, while another was very ill. One of the convicts donned the patient's clothes, and the others disguised their prison dress by covering it with a coat of blacking and hiding the buttons. Having fastened the improvised ropes they lowered themselves through the window till they gained the grasspat while surrounded the easier of blacking and hiding the buttons.
